"It is evident that the industry is committed to driving the intralogistics and material handling industry forward, to provide smarter, quicker and more efficient ways of working."

CeMAT is the world's leading trade show for supply chain management and the intralogistics industry and this year's event provides a hub of interactivity, education and knowledge exchange.

The show will feature the Knowledge Theatre, which has been created to provide an open platform on the show floor for industry leaders from a range of markets and sectors to give insight through case study driven presentations. With up to 30 presentations, attendees will gain priceless insights into how companies have overcome common problems, implemented leading solutions and how the sector is moving into the future.

Sarah concluded: "We look forward to announcing more big name exhibitors in the coming weeks, along with our keynote speakers for the Knowledge Theatre presentations."
